

Office <sup>for</sup> Religious Life

About the Office for Religious Life

Stanford Associated Religions

Community Events

Services and Gatherings

News and Publications

Memorial Church

Global Justice

Academic Offerings in Religion and Ethics

Global Justice

Local Opportunities | National and International Opportunities | Outside Listings service and social action to help build a better world.

The Deans for Religious Life and members of Stanford Associated Religions (SAR) are deeply involved in efforts to alleviate poverty and suffering, confront bigotry and oppression, end war, and promote community.

We work closely with campus groups like the Ethics in Society Program and the Haas Center for Public Service. We also cooperate with a number of local, national and international groups off-campus that you will find listed here. We also encourage listings from outside Stanford (which we retain the right to edit). Join us and help make a difference.

The prophetic dimension of religion—expressed as commitment to global justice—is the central organizing principle of the Office for Religious Life. All religious traditions have historically been engaged in social Within hours after the attacks on September 11th, the Deans for Religious Life convened a noon vigil in Memorial Church for the Stanford community. Over one thousand people came together for comfort and community. The young woman pictured above was one of many who lit candles of hope and sorrow in solidarity with the victims, rescuers and families of the attacks.

Protest against violence and racism, peace rally at White Plaza as part of national Student Day of Action. September 15, 2001

Back to Top